DEAR PEARL.—This is no object upon which experienced men differ so greatly as in their "views of the value of the dwarf pear." By dwarf pear, we mean trees grafted or budded on stocks which so change their habitus as to make them early productive or dwarfish. For this purpose several stocks have been used, with success; and the quince has been found to answer the purpose, but experience teaches that the quince is the only stock for dwarfing the pear, which offers a fair chance of a healthy tree, and a quince, the only variety that answers the purpose well, all other kinds being found to produce short-lived trees. The Aurora is one of the very vigorous variety, and it is in this case, as in others, used as a stock for the pear. In practice, however, the dwarfs, we wish to be understood as referring to pears worked on Ananas quince stock, and no other. As before stated, there is a great difference of opinion as to the value of these dwarf trees. Many persons who have as they think given them a faithful trial, have recommended them, while others in similar localities have been less successful with them. Why is this? Shall we decide, by their value when good authority is so divided as to opinion? There are a few things to be considered in this connection which may explain this diversity of experience, which we will mention.

It is well known that as yet but few kinds of pears have been successfully worked on the quince, a very few which, probably, bear fruit on this stock, than on others, have been again that do well as dwarfs in some sections and totally fail in others, still others that seem to flourish for a few years, and probably produce one good crop of fruit, and then cease to grow, and, after lingering a few years truly pitiable objects, with their misery and rudderless前途, gradually cease to live; and others, which, after a trifling trial, succeed to a poor growth, at first, but, after trials to make a fine tree, Hooker, of New Jersey, and H. E. Hooker, of Rochester, and alredt found it to succeed fully, and that his trees had borne large crops for seven years, sometimes one barrel on each tree, and, moreover, Dr. H.'s practice embraces every disease of the human family, either in male or female, and failing in no instance where he pronounced a cure. The very best reference to the Aurora is the P. K. Prince, of Illinois, said there was no harder pear in the west. Vicar of Windham was recommended as the best.

While Doyenne or Virginian brought out much discussion, and many discordant results, it was, however, admitted that the Armenia, which was telegraphed yesterday, from Halifax, confirms in the most striking manner what we express some days since in reference to the quince as the only stock for dwarfs.
